

The Rich Dad Stock Success Educational Advanced Study Program just isn't for me.

It's been said that "If you always do what you've always done, you'll always have what you have right now." This of course is true but nevertheless, change can be scary and excuses and justifications can pile up faster than we think possible. All of it conspires to force us into procrastination and no action. Let's take a look at some of the most common justifications that people use to stop themselves from entering Robert Kiyosaki's two year training program.

- It's too expensive: My answer to that is what are you comparing it too? It is cheaper than any two year MBA program that I know of. Cheaper than most any College tuition. In fact, it should actually have the potential to be FREE! That's correct, this knowledge should have the ability to show you how to pay yourself back more than what you put into your education. That's the difference between a cost and an investment. This should be an investment. They pay themselves back 30 fold over your lifetime. So since there should be "no actual cost potential" of the classes let's move to the next excuse.
- I just don't have the money right now: O.K. you say," I understand the education should pay for itself and generate returns for me in the future but right now I'm broke! I still need to come up with the tuition by day three of my basic class to continue going forward and I just don't have the funds to take action right now." The lowest level of commitment to gaining access to Robert's program is enrolling in the Annual Forum which is a four day meeting with Robert and Kim themselves plus email access to me for trading questions for two years. That package program is $1995 dollars tuition. If you put that on a credit card your payments would be approx. $30 dollars a month! Everyone has $30 dollars a month so, the question isn't "I don't have any money" it's really that you're not committed to your personal growth or financial future.
- I don't have the time to commit to learning all this: This is the biggest falsehood of all. Everyone has the exact same amount of time. It's never an issue of time. It's an issue of prioritization. Do you ever run out of time to breathe? Of course not! The reason is that it tops our priority list! Everyone can find some time in their day. Find a ½ hour in the morning before you start your day and ½ hour in the evening after work. Cut out T.V. and other time wasters and replace them with wealth generators.

- I don't think I have the ability to trade: This is what our financial advisors have told us our whole lives. Were not qualified to do this. Turn our money over to someone else and pay them to manage it. This is possibly the biggest lie of all we tell ourselves. The story of the Turtle Traders is proof positive that any with zero knowledge or experience can learn to become proficient at managing their own money! It documented proof! We have a step by step binary based; mathematical approach to trading that can get you to where you want to be if you will only apply it.
- I'm too scared, fear is holding me back: Fear is sometimes our biggest roadblock to overcoming our shortcomings. It traps us and holds us back. If you feel an overwhelming sense of fear you need to access why. Go to the homepage of your homework website; www.freetradingdownloads.com and click on the Fear banner. It will help you overcome this nasty thing that's stopping you from making positive change in your life.
- I question the credibility of this education: This is actually a good and valid concern. No one ever wants to feel like they are being taken advantage of or not getting value for their money so let's address this. Hopefully by now you understand that the Binary, Rules based trading approach that we teach is not something that Mr. Kiyosaki just invented out of thin air. All the Rich Dad organization has done it two things: First, they went to Wall Street to find the highest probability of success trading programs out there. Systems and approaches that will put the advantage in your court instead of the markets. You simply cannot questions the validity of these trading strategies. They are not exclusive or proprietary to the Rich Dad organization. Millions of people all over the world trade these exact same strategies every day. All we have done is package them all up into a turn-key educational system that anyone with zero trading experience can walk in off the street, plug into and learn. In addition to that, the biggest thing we have done is contract with trading mentors who hand will hold you on a daily basis if necessary to get your questions answered. This is all done over a two year window. Ultimately the only person in life that can guarantee you success is....you! We can't do it for you. If you're willing to put in the work this truly can be life changing. Just ask yourself this. Are people creating wealth in the stock market? The obvious answer is yes! We have proof it works and can be done. The real question is will you put in the effort to learn what those people already know? Only you can answer that.

If you can come up with any other "reasons" or excuses why the advance classes are not right for you please let me know. I'd love to add to this list.

Good trading

Scott